The Two Orphans The fifth performance of this great light, was witnessed by another crowde louse, every seat being occupied. The num the previous audiences, but the in-terest was not any closer as the per-formance was not any better, since they could not well be. The verdict as to the they could not well be. The verdict as to the merits of play and players was, as on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, one of hearty approval. The Furbish people have deepened the respect and esteem in which they have been hitherto held, and will long be remembered in connection with the strongest and best of modern dramss—The Tuo Orphans. This being fashionable night, there will, of course, be a literal jam. At dark last night nearly every seat was engaged for this evening's performance, but Manager Brooks has arranged so that the orchestra shall occupy a position on the stage, and their space will be filled with comfortable chairs; he has also provided that a great number of extra chairs will be fitted up in the aisles and orchestra, so that everythe to will be provided with comfortable chairs. up in the aisles and orchestra, so that every-bedy will be provided with comfortable seats. The Two Orphans will appear at the matines to-morrow afternoon, and for the last time to-morrow night, so that those who have not witnessed the Furbish combination in this great production have but three more oppor-unities left them. John Robinson's Circus. Yesterday and last night thousands of persons, old and young, attended John Robin-son's great circus and menagerie. Last night there was a very large attendance and a most orilliant performance. John Lowlow, the nimitable clown, seemed to be inspired with musual mirth and jollity, and kept the peo-ple almost continually largehing. Such as an inimitable clown, seemed to be inspired with unusual mirth and jollity, and kept the people almost continually laughing. Such an entertainment as that of last night is not often witnessed in a circus. The attendance was composed of the representatives of the clity of the city, a compliment all the more noticeable when it is known that the Memphis Theater, with the Two Orphans, was also crowded. Old John Robinson, in accordance with his time-honored custom, invited the orphans of Memphis to attend his big show. Such liberality will be appreciated and gratefully rensembered by our people, who long since have learned to esteem John Robinson for his many excellent qualities, and to value the worth of the magnificent shows which he offers the public. The present show is superior to any he has yet given, and in its every feature will not fail to excite interest and pleasure. The equestrians are unsurpassed in grace, dextertly and precision. The vaulters are of the very best to be seen anywhere, while the trained dog, tight-rope performance, trapeze acting and acrobatism are brilliant, graceful and fearless. Miss Jennie Tournour in her equestrianship and feats of balancing elicited the admiration of every spectator. Miss žima Lake's trained horse Alexis was not less interesting than her riding. Every feature of this show is of such an order as to not less interesting than her riding. Every feature of this show is of such an order as to feature of this show is of such an order as to satisfy public expectation. It is second to none in the country, and far surpasses the generality of shows that visit the south. It is a show which does credit to the genius of John Robinson, and gives him additional claim to the reputation accorded him of being the best and most popular and clever showman in America. His menagerie is perhaps the most varied in its character and excellent in its collections that Memphis has ever seen. The old as well as the young, the scholar and the student, will each find in Old John Robinson's menagerie instructive pleasinson's menagerie instructive pleasure and profitable interest. Old John Robinson goes from here to Hernando, Sardis, Grenada, and elsewhere in Mississippi. He took his departure this morning via the Mississippi and Tennessee railroad for Hernando, where he exhibits to-day and to-night. The children of the Church Home orphan asylum yesterday attended the show, they being in charge of Miss Nancy Scott and Mrs. W. S. Pickett, superintendent of the asylum. Owing to the disagreeable weather the attendance yesterday was not large, and although the net proceeds amounted to only eighty-one dollars, Old John Robinson with characteristic liberality donated one hundred dollars to the orphans, Moreover, he will donate the amount of the taxes if the same be allowed by the city council. Again do we commend Old John Robinson and his show to the people. It is excellent in every respect, and during its three days performance in Memphis has afforded unbounded joy, pleasure and mirth to thousands of people.

The Big Bonanza. The Big Bonanza. Next Monday night Augustin Daly's renowned Fifth Avenue theater company, of New York, will commence a week's engagement at the Memphis Theater. The inaugural evening will introduce, what our theater goers have long de ired to enjoy, the Big Bonanza, which is an attraction that no doubt will convuise with laughter thousands here, as it did for over three hundred nights in New York and the other eastern cities. The play was written by Mr. Daly for this company; therefore we are to have it in all its perfection and smoothness, and performed by a company who are to appear here for the first time, one which for the past seven years in New York has not been equaled for artistic companionship in comedy and drains. Everything on this occasion is to be new—scenery, toilettes and garniture, arranged and manufactured in New York for this visit.
